Before you consign an ingredient

- [ ] I have the supplier's name, address and a quality contact the plant can reach.
- [ ] I have a lot-specific COA that shows test methods, limits and actual results.
- [ ] I have the ingredient's specification sheet (identity, strength, contaminant limits).
- [ ] I know how much overage the plant needs and who keeps leftovers.
- [ ] I can deliver to the plant before the booked production date, with a buffer.
- [ ] I know the storage conditions (temperature, humidity, light) and shelf life.
- [ ] I've asked what happens, and who pays, if a lot fails incoming testing.
- [ ] I've compared my landed cost (price + freight + testing + overage) with a turnkey quote.
- [ ] The manufacturing agreement says who owns consigned materials and finished goods.
- [ ] My SOPs and formula reference the same ingredient grade and supplier I'm consigning.
